

Winter Update

Fall 1985

Access to the skylit mezzanine and other galleries will be provided by a three-tiered rampway.

High Museum Downtown Branch

Winter has been selected to build an exciting new cultural addition to downtown Atlanta. The High Museum of Art will open a satellite branch at Georgia-Pacific Center and Winter has already begun construction of the $2 million project. The museum, which will be called The High Museum at Georgia-Pacific Center, will have space for permanent galleries, temporary exhibitions and a museum shop. The facility is being built adjacent to the Georgia-Pacific auditorium on the lobby level of downtown's tallest building.

At a recent press conference to announce the project,